Mt. San Rafael Hospital Recognized by the Colorado Rural Health Center as the Featured Member of the Month

Mt. San Rafael Hospital is a 25 bed critical access hospital serving the medical and surgical needs of Trinidad residents and the surrounding areas

Denver, Colo – Earlier this month the Colorado Rural Health Center (CRHC) kicked off its fifth year of the Improving Communications and Readmissions (iCARE) program. Hospitalizations account for almost one-third of the $2 trillion spent on healthcare in the United States.

Many of these hospitalizations are considered necessary and appropriate, but a significant number of these patients are returning to the hospital after a recent stay. In a study by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation it was estimated that more than $17 billion is spent annually for unneeded readmissions.

“The iCARE program is a statewide improvement project that aligns with these national trends and funding priorities,” said Jen Dunn, CRHC’s director of programs.

“The program focuses on sustainable improvements and outcomes addressing avoidable hospital readmissions at Colorado’s Critical Access Hospitals (CAHs),” added Dunn.

In 2012, the CRHC expanded the iCARE program to include the provider based rural health clinics affiliated with the hospitals. In its current year, 19 CAHs and 22 provider based clinics from around Colorado are participating in the program.

To celebrate the start of the program’s fifth year, CRHC is recognizing one of its members – Mt. San Rafael Hospital – for their engagement and innovation in the iCARE program.

Caleb Murphy Siem manages the iCARE program at CRHC. “Mt. San Rafael Hospital has initiated some truly innovative projects that support the goals of the iCARE program.”

“Healthcare is changing at a rapid pace,” added Siem. “We are featuring Mt. San Rafael Hospital this month because they are creating and transforming new models for success in this new healthcare environment, and really becoming leaders within the iCARE program.”

The Mt. San Rafael Hospital is a family-centered hospital that prides itself on providing the best care and service to the communities they serve. Mt. San Rafael Hospital is a recognized leader in rural healthcare, with 200 full and part-time staff working together to provide high quality, personalized care. To learn more visit, www.msrfhc.org.
